

FRANCE'S DEBT PLAN NOT FAVORED BY U. S.

FRENCH SHOULD PAY OWN DEBTS OFFICIALS SAY

Suggestion Made That Germany Pay Big War Debt.

Washington, April 23.—Administration officials and congressional leaders today threw cold water over semi-official suggestions from France that Germany be compelled to pay the $4,000,000,000 French war debt to the United States in connection with the reparations settlement.

Such a proposal was regarded as inimical to speedy and amicable settlement of the inter-allied debt problems and as imposing upon Germany a financial burden that might result in the absolute economic collapse of the Reich.

Voicing the opinion of the American debt funding commission, of which he is a member, Senator Reed Smoot, of Utah, used emphatic language in discussing the suggestion and added that the United States would not countenance any move to link reparations and debt settlements.

The commission can't force allied nations to pay their debts to us, but we will request that each nation deal with us separately regarding debt settlements, Smoot said. He declared he knew of no intention of President Coolidge to put off discussion of inter-allied debts until after the election this year, as indicated by the semi-official French newspaper Temps.

The United States would not, in his opinion, make the condition of a settlement of France's debt to this country the payment by Germany of its obligations to France, said Senator King, Democrat of Utah. "There is no desire to throw the whole question of Europe's obligations to European nations or to the United States into one cauldron with a view of having various streams of settlement pour forth therefrom," added King. "Germany must meet the reasonable obligations resting upon her and the allied nations themselves must make suitable terms with the creditors to which they are obligated."

"Each country should pay its own debts and not try to avoid paying by showing the burdens upon another," commented Senator Ladd, Republican of North Dakota, one of the progressive leaders. "Such a proposal only would serve to break Germany's back financially."

CHARGES MONTHLY SUM WAS PAID FOR HIS PROTECTION

Columbus, O., April 23.—Charges that he had paid $350 a month for "protection" to a Dr. Hill, were made by Clyde Goldfarb, a confessed bootlegger at Canton, at the Curtis hearing this forenoon before Governor Donahay. Goldfarb, who admitted conducting several "bootleggeries," did not further describe the "Dr. Hill" than to state that he was "a dentist."

The "protection" Goldfarb testified, was for an extended period in 1922. Patrick W. Riffe, went on the witness stand when Governor Donahay this morning resumed the Curtis hearing. Riffe told how he and Detective Martin Pilcher went into the southeast section of Canton to arrest suspicious women. Riffe who is a former city detective, said he arrested three women. Safety Director E. E. Curtis, he said, released these women, stating that they were "too pretty to be locked up."

SCORE OF TOURISTS REPORTED BURNED TO DEATH IN PASSENGER TRAIN COLLISION

Geneva, April 23.—At least twenty-one persons were burned to death in the crash of two express trains filled with excursionists near Bollinzona today. That number of charred bodies had been recovered several hours after the disaster. Most of the victims were Germans.

It was said the engineer of the Milan-Gothard express ignored a signal sending his train crashing into an express from Lucerne on a grade. The Lucerne train was drawn by two locomotives and the crews of all three engines were killed.

After partial examination of the wreckage, it was said that the dead might reach twenty-five. They are mostly Germans.

Following the crash the wreckage caught fire and one coach was burned. Relief trains were rushed to the scene and doctors treated the injured in the open.

In this connection the Daily News said:

President Coolidge's announcement of his readiness to call another conference to consider disarmament and to codify international law is of the highest importance. It may be safely said that if any serious attempt is undertaken by the French government to torpedo this new peace effort with all its hopeful consequences implied in the good news from America, the isolation of France will be final and complete.

Premier MacDonald has been anxious for a definite statement that the United States supports the Dawes plan. He has felt ever since the plan was published that a statement in its support by America would aid in bringing France into line.

Premier MacDonald feels with President Coolidge that the reparations problem which has disturbed Europe for so many years must be settled first.

Newspapers gave conspicuous first page display to the speech. The Manchester Guardian, the chief liberal newspaper outside of London, commented: "So long as France remains nervous about the security of her eastern frontier diplomacy will continue because there will be armaments everywhere in Europe. But with a real settlement of reparations her ground for fear will be immensely diminished. Let us deal with reparations and rejoice that Mr. Coolidge's speech shows how keen the United States is in wishing to help out in straightening up the after-war mess."

The Daily Chronicle, personal or gan of former Premier Lloyd George commented: "It is a weighty voice."

The Daily Chronicle suggests further discussion upon the proposed world conference for regulation of air warfare and to work out an agreement to protect civilian populations.

Washington, April 23.—The scope of President Coolidge's political activities have doubled. Already busy with his presidential campaign, Mr. Coolidge returned to Washington today from New York to take upon himself the added burden imposed by his deliberate plunge into European politics.

No outward change may be expected soon in the American policy towards the reparations settlement and other European problems as the result of the president's declaration of his desire to extend a helping hand across the Atlantic, administration officials said today, pointing out, however, that the president has pointed the way and has made the United States more than ever an important factor in any European adjustment.

In Congress, where suggestions for a new world armament conference have been frowned upon by administration leaders, Mr. Coolidge's warm endorsement of proposals for further limitations caused distinct surprise.

Less than a month ago when Senator Pepper, Republican of Pennsylvania, tried to put a resolution through the senate calling for a new conference to limit naval and air armaments, there was a general understanding that the president disapproved of the move and that he did not think the condition of international affairs augured for the success of such an undertaking. The same thing happened in the house when the naval appropriation bill was under consideration.

Now that the president has indicated his approval of another armament conference as soon as Europe's stability is assured, renewed efforts will be made to get the senate's endorsement of the Pepper resolution.

Everything depends, however, upon a reparations settlement predicated upon the Dawes plan.

Washington, April 23.—President Coolidge won a sweeping victory over Senator Hiram Johnson in Tuesday's Republican presidential primary, according to returns today, from over 2,000 of the states 2,500 election districts.

Johnson apparently failed to win a single one of the states thirty-one delegates to the national convention. With only 479 districts to be heard from the vote was: Coolidge 90,274; Johnson 10,487.

In the Democratic primary Governor George S. Silzer, won an almost unanimous victory in his race. He was unopposed but a number of voters wrote in the name of Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York. Practically the only important fight in the Republican primary was that of the Anti-Saloon league against United States Senator Walter E. Edge and former Governor E. C. Stokes, Coolidge delegates at large.

They ran practically even with the rest of the ticket.

SWEEPING VICTORY WON BY COOLIDGE OVER NEW JERSEY

Trenton, N. J., April 23.—President Coolidge won a sweeping victory over Senator Hiram Johnson in Tuesday's Republican presidential primary, according to returns today, from over 2,000 of the states 2,500 election districts.

TRIAL EXPECTED TO START ON WEDNESDAY

Columbus, O., April 23.—Indications early today were that a jury would be empaneled and the trial of Frank L. Holycross, Franklin County Sheriff, would formally get under way by noon today. Three women already have been selected for the tentative jury. Holycross is accused of having solicited and with accepting a bribe of $1,000 from David Ungerleider, Wheeling, W. Va., in connection with a case of alleged violation of the prohibition laws.

OIL RESERVE MAY BE LARGELY DRAINED

Washington, April 23.—Between 60 and 70 per cent of Teapot Dome is subject to drainage by wells in the adjacent Salt Creek field, James O. Lewis, consulting engineer of Tulsa, Okla., told the senate public lands committee today.

Lewis, who made a geological study of Teapot Dome for the committee last fall, was recalled to the stand by Senator Spencer, Republican of Missouri.

KNIGHT SEES NEED OF IMMEDIATE TAX REDUCTION IN OHIO

Akron, O., April 23.—In a speech before the Exchange Club this noon, former Congressman Charles L. Knight, emphasized the need for immediate tax reduction, claiming that "business is sagging under the strain of heavy and unneeded taxes."

Continuing, he said: "The president in the Mellon bill pointed out how that strain could be removed. Instead of heeding that advice congress took to fiddling," he said. "The strains of the bonus salary now float across the soft spring air beseeching the former service man to get his partner and walk right up to the polls. The seductive music of the price fixing barn dance breathes a call across the meadows for SI booted and spurred to get in while the getting is good and stay there until the vote is counted."

"And thus while the house is selling the prosperity of the nation for votes necessary to perpetuate its unnecessary existence the orgy in the senate is even worse."

"Over there, is but one fiddle with one string, and one tune is played upon it. It is the 'investigation blues'."

"Prosperity may break down under heavy taxation, business may stagnate, unemployment may come upon the land but all the world must know what reformed horse thieves and unreformed bootleggers have learned from those who now safely and conveniently sleep in the bosom of Abraham."

Bills are passed imposing burdens of billions almost without debates, while days are given to crooks to spew their venom upon responsible officers of the government, who, if guilty, could only be reached by impeachment."

"The country is tired of it. The people are sick of it. And yet the taxpayer who foots the bills can do nothing. He has seen the Mellon tax bill hamstringing and reduced to an absurdity that will benefit nobody, but the men elected to office to represent the people and who now are defying them."

"Indeed, representative government has never been so near to a complete breakdown in this country, and almost the only hope left is the president. In my humble judgment the time has come for him to wield the big stick."

ANOTHER ROUND IS WON BY WHEELER

Washington, April 23.—Senator Burton K. Wheeler won another round today in the senatorial investigation of his "fitness to hold office," resulting from his indictment by a federal grand jury in Montana.

Wheeler was given a "clean bill of health," by L. V. Beaulieu, of Los Angeles, attorney for Gordon Campbell on all charges contained in the indictment. Beaulieu flatly denied that Wheeler ever had represented Campbell on oil leases or government permits.

REPORTS ARE DENIED
Washington, April 23.—Official denial of reports that two Americans were slain in Albania in addition to George B. DeLong of New York and Robert L. Coleman, of San Francisco, was contained today in a dispatch to the state department from Ulysses Grant Smith, the U. S. minister at Tirana.

DAUGHERTY TO FIRE BROADSIDE AT HIS ENEMIES

Promises to Reveal "Real Reasons" Behind Senate Probe.

Washington, April 23.—Former Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty stopped off in Washington today long enough to take a crack at the Wheeler-Brookhart committee investigating his official acts and then continued on to Columbus, Ohio, where he is to deliver an address tonight defending his record in the department of justice and assailing his senatorial accusers.

In a statement issued here, Daugherty promised to reveal at Columbus the "real reasons" behind the senatorial investigation and announced that his counter attack would be continued in subsequent public addresses.

At the same time the senate committee proceeded to institute contempt proceedings against the former attorney general's brother, Mal S. Daugherty, of Washington Court House, Ohio.

The contempt proceedings grow out of the committee's visit to Washington, C. H. Daugherty obtained a court order stopping a session of the committee.

Previously he had refused to obey a committee subpoena or to permit examination of the books of the Midland National bank there.

Under the plan adopted by the Wheeler committee, the senate will be asked to order Daugherty's arrest and incarceration until he complies with the request of the senatorial investigators. The matter undoubtedly will be threshed out in the District of Columbia Federal Court.

The committee's plan of action, however, will differ from that pursued by the Walsh committee against Harry P. Sinclair, the oil magnate, who also refused to testify at a senate hearing. The Wheeler plan was to obtain a warrant from the president pro tempore of the senate for Daugherty's arrest with a formal order from the senate for his imprisonment until he signified his willingness to obey the committee's requests.

PINCHOT DEFEATED IN PENNSYLVANIA IN STATE PRIMARY

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 23.—Sweeping far ahead of Governor Gifford Pinchot in his fight for delegate-at-large to the Republican national convention, Ralph Beaver Strassburger, Norristown publisher, apparently defeated the state executive by more than 200,000 votes in the state primary of yesterday, first returns indicated today.

Early returns today indicated Strassburger would carry Adams, Allegheny, Armstrong, Berks, Delaware, Elk, Erie, Lebanon, Montgomery, Northampton and Philadelphia Counties. The greatest Strassburger strength was shown in the cities, but even a tremendous rural vote was not expected to recuperate the governor's losses.

Philadelphia, April 23.—Complete unofficial returns from Philadelphia's forty-eight wards today gave Ralph B. Strassburger, Norristown publisher, an almost seven-to-one victory over Governor Pinchot in the fight for delegate-at-large to the Republican national convention. The vote was:

Strassburger 224,320; Pinchot 34,312, giving Strassburger a lead of 190,107. The other candidates for delegate at large with organization support polled comparatively the same vote as Strassburger.

Philadelphia, April 23.—The vote at yesterday's primaries "does not represent the conscience and heart of Pennsylvania," With this epigram, Governor Gifford Pinchot today virtually acknowledged defeat in his fight yesterday with Ralph Beaver Strassburger, Norristown, publisher, for delegate-at-large to the Republican national convention.

KING AND QUEEN OPEN EXHIBITION

London, April 23.—King George, Queen Mary and the Prince of Wales today formally opened the British empire exhibition at Wembley. It was estimated that 100,000 persons, drawn from all corners of the empire attended.

Despite the damp, gloomy weather crowds began lining up before the gates at six o'clock in the morning. The gigantic show will last all summer and will be the greatest thing of its kind in the history of the world. When the tourist season gets fully under way it is estimated that two million persons will visit the exhibition weekly.

WARRING FACTIONS AGREE

Washington, April 23.—The warring factions which have kept Honduras in a revolutionary state for months were brought together in a peace conference today aboard the U. S. S. Milwaukee in the harbor of Annapolis, according to a report to the state department from Sumner Wells, President Coolidge's personal mediator.

TRANSACTIONS IN OIL STOCK RELATED

Washington, April 23.—William A. Wallace, counsel for William Boyce Thompson, former chairman of the ways and means committee of the Republican National Committee, in a letter to the senate public lands committee today told of additional transactions of Thompson in Sinclair oil stock.

On January 13, 1922, an associate of Thompson on the Russian Red Cross mission bought 450 shares of Sinclair Consolidated under the impression that Thompson was a director in the company. When Thompson learned of this, he exchanged Texas Gulf Sulphur stock for the 450 shares of Sinclair so that his associate would not lose money on the oil stock, Wallace said.

Wallace denied that any member of Thompson's family, other than Thompson himself, ever owned Sinclair stock.

CHILD LABOR TO COME BEFORE HOUSE

Washington, April 23.—The child labor constitutional amendment is to be brought to a vote in the house shortly under plans matured today by the house leaders.

Pressure for action on this resolution that there may be no delay in submitting it to the states for ratification is coming from many sources. House advocates of the resolution say they have the necessary two thirds vote to insure its passage.

The amendment gives the congress power to regulate and prohibit employment of children under 18 years of age.

given power to tax all other forms of property as it desires, but taxation of evidences of ownership would be prohibited.

The other proposed amendments to the Ohio constitution were offered by Henry F. Waldrat, professor of public finance, the Ohio State University. They seek to pave the way for a new income tax. One would exempt tangible personal property from the general property tax.

When the Hornick Electric Company wanted to sell a Dodge coupe which worked the same old Dodge which has been worked so successfully again and again by Xenia people.

They tucked a little classified ad in The Gazette-Republican "Used Cars" column. The same old Dodge quickly found a new owner for their Dodge—in fact the deal was closed almost immediately, although many people came after the sale—and everybody connected with the deal is as happy as a clam at high tide.

The same old Dodge will probably be sold again sometime in the future by a similar dodge. When YOU want quick results, dodge down to the Gazette and Republican office, or else call 111 and ask for an ad-taker.

BRITISH KING IS MORE LIMITED THAN CITIZENS

London, April 23.—Political changes recently in Britain have led to a discussion regarding the powers of the King. Many people think that a king has almost unlimited sway. As a matter of fact, in Britain, no man is more hedged around by rules and regulations than its Sovereign.

In the first place King George must remain a Protestant. Should he become a Roman Catholic he would have to renounce his throne. In the same way, he must not become a Freemason; had he happened to be one at the time of his accession he would have been obliged at once to resign from the craft. As a matter of fact, King George was never initiated.

Apart from religion and law, the King is bound rigidly by many rules, both social and political. For instance, on becoming the monarch he must immediately withdraw from any clubs to which he has hitherto belonged; and again, he never writes a personal letter to anyone outside his immediate personal circle; all his other private correspondence is conducted through secretaries.

Again, according to rule, he must not accept any invitation to dine or stay with one of his subjects. On the contrary, when, for instance, he wishes to stay with Lord Derby in order to see the Grand National race run at Liverpool, he has to invite himself.

The King's position toward the law is also somewhat anomalous. As a general theory, he is regarded as above the law; in practice, however, he has to obey it like anyone else. He is not in a position to play any tricks with the recognized legal system of the country.

He can issue, with the advice of his ministers, royal proclamations which have the force of law; but the proclamation is only binding so far as it is based upon an existing statute.

He cannot set up private tribunals, nor can he add to the jurisdiction of a court. And by a special act of Parliament he has also been decided that the King, if he were to lose a suit brought against him by the Revenue authorities, would be liable to pay all costs. On the other hand, a subject cannot sue the King except by what is known as a "petition of right," leave to issue which has to be obtained from the Attorney General.

The King, according to the law of the land, cannot possibly commit an offense. Any wrong or injury suffered by a subject at his hands is attributed to the "mistakes of his advisers."

Therefore it happened that the king is the only person in Great Britain who cannot arrest a suspected felon, even if he caught a burglar entering Buckingham Palace. The reason for this is that no action for wrongful arrest could be brought against him, and hence if the man caught were proved innocent it would be a case of a wrong without a remedy.

The King cannot impose any taxation without first securing the consent of the House of Commons. So severe is this restriction that the King cannot create any new post with new fees, or add new fees to existing posts, because this would be regarded as equivalent to new taxation. The good old days of the Stuarts have gone, when King Charles could raise taxes how and when he pleased.

WIND TURBINES TO BE TRIED AS POWER SOURCE

Salt Lake City, April 23.—Shrouded in all possible secrecy from the time work was started, the first bits of meagre information are beginning to leak out regarding the most unusual mechanical experiment ever attempted in this State. It is a wind turbine, or series of wind turbines, erected on top of a mountain with the expectation of developing electrical energy to a maximum of 40,000 horsepower.

So far as known, all that has been made public voluntarily in connection with the unique project is a picture of the working model of the turbine. Virtually all else in connection with the experiment, although it is not regarded as an experiment by a Los Angeles corporation backing the venture, is largely guesswork, or meagre information obtained from workmen who have been employed in making preliminary preparations for the installation.

The turbine is said to weigh 246 tons in its full size and completely equipped. Large metal vanes, held in a framework in such a way as to move somewhat like a ship's sails and gather a maximum of the wind's force, cause the whole upper works of the turbine to revolve turntable fashion. This revolving motion is communicated to the electrical generator. Up to the present time the name of the inventor has not been made public.

The aerial electrical plant is being installed at the top of Sugarloaf Mountain, a lone, sentinel-like peak in a desert valley about twelve miles south of Delta, a town in Southwestern Utah. The peak, which has long been celebrated for the rather stiff breeze which almost constantly fans its summit, has a flat top well adapted to a project of this character.

There is a single steep trail leading up a canyon to the top of the mountain. Without advance notice of any kind, engineers appeared in the locality several months ago and opened extensive construction work on the flat peak, hiring men from communities a considerable distance from Delta, although most of the construction material, such as cement and lumber, is said to have been purchased in the nearest town.

At the present time it is declared that approximately $100,000 must have been spent on the preliminary construction work alone, which is said to consist almost entirely of broad concrete works, such as might be expected to support the turntable portion of the turbines. Men who have worked on the project indicate that apparently the erection of several of the air turbines is contemplated. The total height of each turbine above the concrete platform on which it is to rest is said to be 105 feet.

Virtually all of the piecemeal information obtained to date regarding the unique project has been gathered by engineers and officials of hydro-electric companies serving the district with power, which is used largely for pumping water for irrigation. While ready to condemn the experiment to utter failure, these same engineers have shown an unusual interest in the whole mystery. During the early portion of the construction work atop the mountain the single trail was carefully guarded to keep inquisitive persons from reaching the scene of operations.

One engineer, more inquisitive than the others, is said to have evolved the bright idea of making a dash up the trail in a high-powered automobile ostensibly to test out his motor. The plan worked, until his car stalled a few hundred feet from the summit, after which he was told by a man with a shotgun resting across his saddlehorn that would be safer to turn around and go back down the trail, according to a story related in Delta. The engineer never reached the summit of the mountain.

An important feature of the proposed electrical development in which engineers of the local companies are especially interested in picking flaws is a new type storage battery in connection with the air turbines, by which it is proposed to store 5,000 horsepower of energy for use when the wind fails. Engineers of the hydro-electric companies contend that no battery with a capacity of this size has ever been constructed.

So far the only name mentioned which would give a clue to the backers of the strange enterprise is that of the United States River Hydro-Electric Light and Power Company of Los Angeles.

BERNARR MACFADDEN

Health Hints

by the Father of Physical Culture

We know what the liver does; we have definite ideas about certain of its attributes; but the real nature of these activities is as obscure as the working plan of legerdemain is to the majority of us.

Why the liver does the things it does is one of the most interesting problems in modern physiology—and the most wonderful. It discloses, for one thing, that stored up in each little six-sided, saw-toothed, liver cell, no larger than a grain of mustard, is a capacity for neutralizing poisons and for converting toxins into harmless by-products that is the despair of chemists.

It absorbs toxins, generates anti-toxins, and filters out of the blood—every last corpuscle of which passes through its poison sieves once every twenty minutes—material, the accumulation of which in the system means certain death to the individual.

And it is the Food Inspector Extraordinary of the body—a food inspector that really inspects. For every particle of digested food is carried first to the liver, through the great portal vein and its branches. Here, if the liver is really "alive," the toxins and the harmful elements in the dissolved food undergo that marvelous transformation into harmless—or even helpful—substitutes.

But if the liver is down in the mouth, sluggish and morose, it won't be long before its owner will be likewise—or more so.

For the neglect on the part of the liver to neutralize these poisons and to filter them out of the blood, permits them to travel at will throughout the system. They are thus brought into contact with even the remotest cell. For a while the principle of "selective affinity"—that wonderful "thing" that tells each cell just what to pick out of the blood for its nourishment, and what to reject—operates normally—"functions" as we say in physiology.

Then its keen scent, or its discriminating taste, or its irritating presence of substances foreign to its own make-up or whatever it is that supplies "intelligence" to the liver cells—becomes weary with the protracted struggle, and with a dull moan of despair the liver turns its face to the wall and gives it up for a bad job.

MONEY AT WORK

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments

Think back and remember how many times you appear at the window of a theatre or movie and compare that with the number of times you deposit money at a savings bank.

Many people who think they have not enough money to save spent a considerable sum in small dribs and never suspect the total that leaks out in that way.

While amusement may be very agreeable, it is also pleasant to build up an estate that will bring financial peace of mind and personal independence.

MODISH MITZI—Nothing Is More Fashionable Than Lace

BY JAY V. JAY

All the fashion news from Paris tells of the great vogue of lace—colored lace—and Mitzi never is far behind Paris. That's why you see her trying on this evening gown of white lace over white satin and wondering if she ought to consider getting married. This would be a perfect wedding gown.

This is a little more practical—at least Mitzi's ideas of what is practical are a little difficult to grasp. But there's no doubt that it is charming. Green lace with large bows on each hip and a most becoming square décolletage. She almost buys this one, but suddenly she sees—

A gown that was simply made for her! It is silver cloth with black lace and has wide lace flounces below the knees. She is saying nonchalantly, "Charge it," and she knows that Dad won't even murmur—after he has seen the dress. Madam Celeste, the perfect saleswoman, knows that this was why she was born.

However, in a few minutes Mitzi is going to discover she isn't the only person who knows that lace is fashionable. She will meet Polly dressed in this elaborate little frock (from Paris) that is nine-tenths lace and one-tenth satin, with two little shoulder capes for smartness' sake.

REMOVAL OF RAIL SHOPS TO SOUTH CHARLESTON SURE

Removal of all shops and terminal facilities of the D. T. and I. Railroad from Springfield to South Charleston, has been announced and confirmed by officials of that railroad and of the Canadian National Railway.

The shops will occupy a recently purchased site of 1,800 acres near South Charleston, it is announced. Removal of the terminal to South Charleston is said to have caused a slight boom in that town, as the population will be greatly increased and real estate values have soared.

Orders governing the dress of men employees on the D. T. and I. Railroad have been issued. They must wear collar and tie and a respectable hat or cap. Those wearing business suits must have them cleaned and in press. Overalls, also, must be kept clean.

A few weeks ago the men were all given watches by the company and they have now been issued watch chains.

Mrs. Leighley was arrested Monday night when only part of the apparel was retrieved, and was turned over to Juvenile Court authorities. Leighley was arrested later and is being held at Police Headquarters.

JAMESTOWN CALLED TO DENVER

Mrs. N. N. Hunter was called last week to Denver, Col., on account of the death of her father, Mr. Albert Wickersham. Mr. Hunter accompanied Mrs. Hunter as far as Chicago. The many Jamestown friends of Mr. Wickersham regret to hear of his passing away. Although the family had not lived here for a number of years, his friends looked forward to his periodical visits back home and extended to him a warm welcome. Mr. Wickersham possessed a cheerful and jovial disposition and had the happy faculty of making and keeping friends. Our most substantial building stands as a monument to his success in business and his enterprise and interest in his home town. In politics he was a staunch Republican. While he never sought the emoluments of an office, he always worked indefatigably for the success of the party.

WILL USE MACADAM

The village council has had the feasibility of paving Limestone street under consideration for some time and there had been much discussion by the members as to which kind of material should be used, brick or macadam. However, a petition by the property owners abutting the street, resulted in a vote in favor of macadam. The construction will begin at the B. and O. R. R. on the south and extend to the bridge on the north, which bounds the corporate limits. Attorney J. A. Finney of Xenia met with the Council on Monday evening and gave the instructions which will lead to the completion of the contract.

"MAGIC MIKE, THE WEEPING WILLOW."

SECRETARY C. D. WILBUR. INTL.

Secretary of the Navy Curtis D. Wilbur, former Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of California, is himself a graduate of the U. S. Naval Academy at Annapolis. That's where he got the nickname "Magic" that still clings to him. Upper classmen were in the habit of stopping plebes to ask their names and haze them. A senior friend of Wilbur told him a name to give when so challenged. The name follows: "Magic Mike, the man of fells, the weeping willow from the great Northwest." The name proved so bewildering to the hazers, and Wilbur's huge frame looked so big against the sky he was never molested thereafter. Secretary Wilbur is shown at his desk in the Navy Department in Washington.

WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH WATTS? IT'S DRY.

DRYING UP WATTS, CAL. INTL.

Rear Admiral C. P. Plunkett, U. S. N., recently declared Washington, D. C., is the "wettest city in America." That charge can't be laid at the door of Watts, Cal., though once it might have been. In this photograph society leaders and W. C. T. U. workers are shown parading the streets with part of the 4,000 gallons of confiscated liquor seized there in dry raids. They stood around a huge hole that had been dug in front of the City Hall and watched Police Chief A. S. Thompson pour out the contents of the "cup that cheers."

Wassili Waremchick, 36, native of Vilna, Russia, has unemotionally confessed four murders because his common-law wife, Anna Balai, stole his life savings of $2,000 and ran away with another man. Believing Stephen Klubeck aided in her flight, he set fire to a New York City tenement in which Klubeck lived. Klubeck, his wife and their two children perished and scores of others had narrow escapes. Acting, it is said, on hints from the German Government that he has worn out his welcome, Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, millionaire slacker, is negotiating for his return to America to finish his prison sentence and recover his property. King George of Greece, exiled in Rumania, is said to have agreed upon terms by which he will voluntarily abdicate. Frank A. Munsey, proprietor of several New York City newspapers, has sold the New York Herald to Ogden Reid, owner of the New York Tribune, for a sum said to be $4,000,000. The papers will be merged under the name New York Herald-Tribune.

INGROWN TOE NAIL TURNS OUT ITSELF

A few drops of "Outgro" upon the skin surrounding the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it can not penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night.

"Outgro" is a harmless antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

WORK OF P.-T. A.'S IN CITY OUTLINED AT TUESDAY MEET

The scope of the work of the Parent-Teacher Associations in the Xenia City Schools, was clearly outlined, and shown to be larger than the average Xenian realizes, at the meeting of the federated association at Central High School, Tuesday afternoon.

There are now 330 members enrolled in P.-T. A. work in Xenia. The federated organization spent $1,086.19 for child welfare during the past year, sent out 122 Thanksgiving baskets to needy families, held forty-six meetings, with good speakers and an interesting program at each, including the meetings at which the state vice-president and the district supervisor were present.

Five schools are represented in the federated organization, with representatives from each at the meeting Tuesday. After the amount spent for child welfare, including clothing and food, there is in all the treasuries of the federation $359.62. Each treasurer gave a report of the school she represented.

The report of the nurses who weighed the children was most gratifying, every child showing marked gain, proving the feeding sponsored by the P. T. A., is worth while. Donations were received from the public-at-large, to the organization, throughout the year, and from the Rotary Club, and Social Service League.

Nurses weighed the children each month. Mrs. J. H. Benbow was elected to the office of president of the Federated P.-T. A., taking the place of Mrs. H. D. Smith, who guided the work of the past months, and who was elected vice-president. Mrs. J. J. Stout was re-elected secretary and treasurer.

C. A. Waltz, city superintendent of school, addressed the members, outlining the work for next year. He urged the organization to continue the feeding in each school, and to carry out their former policy in every detail.

At the beginning of the school term, $579.19 was turned over to Mr. Waltz, for the work in the Opportunity School. It cost $50 a week to feed the children of the school. $224.94 are now in the bank, enough to carry on the work this year.

The federation pledged its support to Mr. Waltz, in the Opportunity School work. "The Parent-Teacher Association is the 'big sister' to the children of the Opportunity School," Mr. Waltz said. "The school is worth while, and its success depends on the public."

J. C. Marshall, judge of the Probate Court, has declared that delinquency in Xenia has been lessened by the Opportunity School. Mr. Waltz said, "Each local school has its own problems, but the Opportunity School will have to be the problem of all the schools." A bulletin has been issued by the school officials telling of the work and good of the school, which may be secured at the superintendent's office.

Mrs. Walter Dean told the federation members of several homes she visited, and asked that housewives can a few extra jars of fruit this year for the Opportunity School. Mrs. M. R. Rodgers has told briefly of the prevention of gonorrhea, and urged that a campaign be started to stamp the disease out among school children.

The federation donated $25 to help buy rugs for the boys' rest room. May 6, Spring Valley, May 6; Bath Consolidated, May 14; Jamestown, May 20; Bellbrook, May 22; Yellow Springs, May 28; Ross Centralized, May 15; Beaver Creek May 14, and Cedarville, May 15.

FIFTY WILL TAKE COUNTY NORMAL EXAMS ON MAY 10

With the enrollment of about fifty persons, to take the state and county normal examination, in Greene County, May 10, it is thought that this county will have one of the largest groups in the state, according to school officials.

Some counties are reporting that scarcely any prospective teachers are expecting to enroll for the examination because of the fact that teachers salaries are not in proportion to the expense necessitated in acquiring the legal amount of college and normal training.

The examination, May 10, will be held at the McKinley school building, this city, for all students of both state and county normal schools, including those who expect to take up teaching at some future date.

A representative of the State Department of Education Superintendent D. H. Sellers, of Troy, Ohio, will be sent to have charge of the Greene County examination, with the assistance of Susanne Koehler, of the Greene County Normal School.

H. C. Aultman, county superintendent of schools, will be sent to Miami County, to assist in the examination there, and C. A. Waltz, city school superintendent has been notified to go to Eaton, Preble County, Ohio.

CHORAL SOCIETY WINS PRAISE BY CONCERT OF MERIT

The second concert of the Xenia Choral Society, at the First M. E. Church, Tuesday night, brought forcibly to the attention of those hearing the offering that Xenia has a choral society of real worth.

The appreciation of the city of the talent within its environs was evidenced by the large audience attending. The large main church auditorium was filled, as were the lecture rooms and galleries.

Showing the master hand of Carlton McHenry, of Dayton, director, during the past few months the chorus carried each number through with finesse and ease. The program was materially aided by the accompaniment of Miss Stella Bishop, of this city, talented pianist.

The repertoire opened with Elgar's "The Challenge of Thor (King Olaf)," and in the first number the chorus showed the training that characterized the entire evening's performance.

An unusual touch was added to the program by several numbers by the Chikering Ampico re-acting piano, furnished by The House of Soward, Dayton. The three numbers were "Naila Ballet" by Dohnanyi-Delibes, played by Mieczyslaw Munz; "Valse," Levitzki, played by Mischa Levitzki, and "Prelude-C Sharp Minor" Rachmaninoff, played by the composer.

The second and third chorus numbers were "Volga Boat Song" arranged by B. C. Tutill, and "Moonlight" by Eaton Fanning.

Miss Henryetta Logan, whose voice is always enjoyed by Xenia audiences, delicately handled "Joy of the Morning," by Harriet Ware, and "Do Not Go, My Love," by Richard Hageman.

The main cantata was "Land of Our Hearts" by G. W. Chadwick, followed by "Earth and Man," by Clarence Dickinson. "Goin' Home" by Anton Dvorak won enthusiastic applause from the audience, and an encore was granted.

Mr. George Kester, of Dayton, proved a delight to the audience, with his "Call Me No More" and responded with two encores. His voice displayed control and good training.

The concert closed with the "Hallelujah Chorus," always an inspiring favorite. The final number by the Ampico, followed.

Interpreting the program, the Rev. W. H. Telford, made a short talk, in the interest of the society, asking for a silver offering to aid the organization.

The construction of a large special platform, over the church altar, aided the acoustics of the auditorium.

BRINGING UP FATHER

THE HALF-TIME WIFE By VIOLET DARE

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY.

DUNCAN HALE, a young army officer, returns from the Philippines to find that

SUZANNE, with whom he is in love, has married

GEORGE ATWOOD, a prominent man much older than she.

Hale tries to persuade her to leave her husband, get a divorce and marry him, feeling sure that she still cares for him. Suzanne is troubled by this, and by the report that there is a love affair between the only unbusiness-like note was a photograph of herself. It was a fitting environment for Geoffrey, too. He was the best type of American business man, big, broad shouldered, well built—a daily round of hand ball kept him young and alert looking, and he was proud of the fact that he was in as good condition as any young college athlete. She was very proud of Geoffrey, and of being his wife, but being married to him was a far more serious business than she had sup-

VIII—COMPLICATIONS.

AS Suzanne crossed the outer office a tall, beautiful woman in black came toward her. She hesitated, paused, intercepting Suzanne.

"I'm Mrs. Atwood," Suzanne told her, rather bluntly, and started to pass.

"Oh, I'm so glad to meet you, I am Mrs. Vale," answered the other woman, so charmingly that Suzanne was disarmed.

They shook hands, and Suzanne edged around her, politely, but determinedly. "I thought I'd just run down and see if I couldn't see my husband for a moment before he left," she explained.

"Well, Geoffrey's frightfully busy, as I told you on the telephone; it's too bad to interrupt him," Mrs. Vale replied. "I'll just go in and tell him—"

"No, I'll go," Suzanne hurriedly took the few steps that lay between her and her husband's door. "Geoffrey"—Mrs. Vale called him by his first name, then! Suzanne knew that they had known each other for a long time, but that discovery disturbed her, nevertheless.

She found Geoffrey at his desk, talking to a man whom she hardly saw, although she acknowledged Geoffrey's introduction of him politely enough. Her mind was focused so completely on her husband that nothing else could find a way into it.

The man departed shortly afterward, and Geoffrey turned to her, smiling.

"I tried to get you on the phone a little while ago, but the line was busy," he told her, drawing her down to a seat on the narrow arm of his chair. "And before I tried to call, Mrs. Vale told me that she had given you the message. Did you meet her as you came in?"

"Yes," she introduced herself. Suzanne replied quietly. It would never do to let Geoff know how she felt about Mrs. Vale. "She said that you were frightfully busy."

"I am, but not too busy to see you, ever," he answered. "Now, I have some letters to sign, and a few directions to give; do you want to sit down in that big chair by the window and wait till I get them out of the way, and then we can drive to the station together?"

Obediently as a well trained little girl, Suzanne took the chair indicated. She liked this big, sunny office of Geoff's, looking down into one of the city's business streets, liked his big orderly desk, on which posed two months before. She had not realized that having the marriage ceremony said over two people by a minister does not do more than begin to make a marriage; that the people most concerned have to go on and build up a partnership for themselves.

"I'll need some money," she told him.

Mrs. Vale came in, smiled sweetly at Suzanne and sat down by Geoffrey's desk. He suggested various things that should be done; in every instance she replied suavely that they had been begun or were on her list. Apparently she had anticipated all his orders.

"You run the office better than I do," he laughed. "All right, that's about all, I guess. You have my address?" Forward those Lewis papers if they come. Now honey, come along."

He put on his hat and reached for his coat, but Mrs. Vale was already holding it for him. Suzanne stared, trying to curb her resentment. It was all right for Mrs. Vale to be a good secretary, but why this intimate touch also?

"Geoff, I'm going to need some money while you're away," Suzanne told him, as he turned to her. "My allowance is all gone."

"Well, here's Abbott, our bookkeeper," he answered, turning to the man who had just come in. "He'll mail you a check—put it on my personal account, Abbott. Now we'll run."

They hurried through the outer office so rapidly that Suzanne had only a glimpse of Mrs. Vale, who was talking with one of the stenographers. But it was impossible not to catch her expression. Envy and resentment were there, and she had no smile for Suzanne but only a narrow eyed look of dislike. She called "Goodbye" gaily enough as the door slammed behind them, but Suzanne felt that she had seen something not intended for her eyes, something that had truth behind it.

FARM PROGRESS

INTEREST IN SOY BEANS MANIFESTED IN GREENE COUNTY

Widespread interest in soy beans is being manifested in Greene County because of their many uses, their wide adaptability to soil conditions and also because so many farmers this year have very little good hay in prospect.

Soy beans are admirably adapted for hay, for ensiling with corn, for seed and feeding as grain and for hogging down.

Few farmers appreciate the high feeding value of soy beans. The hay analysis compared with alfalfa follows:

Digestible nutrients in 100 lbs.	Protein	Carbo- hydrate	Fat
Soy bean hay	11.7%	39.2	1.2
Alfalfa hay	10.5	39	.9

It is easily seen that as a hay crop, soy beans do not suffer in comparison with alfalfa.

Soy bean seed is the most concentrated feed that farmers can grow. The analysis of the seed is here given:

Total nutrients	Protein	Carbo- hydrate	Fat
Dig. nutrients	30.7	22.8	14.4

This analysis compares very favorably to oil meal as far as protein is concerned while the fat content is greater. For best results in feeding soy beans a mineral mixture is supplied consisting of 100 lbs. acid phosphate, 100 lbs. ground limestone marl or wood ashes and 20 lbs. salt.
